T. P. O'CONNOR DEMANDS PROBE OF BRITISH CRIMES IN ERIN

PRIEST IS SLAIN BY CADET

Girl Defies Wool Man in Her $25,000 Love Suit

London, May 22.—(By House of Commons.) T. P. O'Connor, president of the National Union of Students, today demanded an independent investigation of the execution made by British troops in the streets of Dublin in 1916.

O'Connor, a prominent student leader, declared that the execution of the Irish rebels was a crime against humanity and that the British government should be held responsible for the deaths of the rebels.

O'Connor also demanded that the British government should pay compensation to the families of the rebels who were executed.

O'Connor's demand was met with a strong reaction from the British government, which declared that the execution of the rebels was a necessary measure to maintain law and order in Dublin.

O'Connor's demand was also met with a strong reaction from the Irish people, who declared that the British government was responsible for the deaths of the rebels.

O'Connor's demand was also met with a strong reaction from the British public, who declared that the execution of the rebels was a necessary measure to maintain law and order in Dublin.

ALL GARAGES TO TEST HEADLIGHT

Goodwin Has Plan to Obliviate Necessity of Establishing Public Stations

Boston, May 25.—The Massachusetts Automobile Association has announced a plan to establish public stations for testing headlights in all garages throughout the state. The association, which has been active in promoting the safety of motorists, believes that this plan will greatly reduce the number of accidents caused by defective headlights. The plan is to have a representative of the association visit each garage and test the headlights of all cars parked there. If a headlight is found to be defective, the driver will be notified and given a chance to have it repaired before the car is allowed to leave the garage. The association estimates that this plan will save the state many thousands of dollars in damages and legal expenses each year.

Rich Children Catch Diphtheria Easily

New York, May 25.—The rich children of the city are more susceptible to diphtheria than those of the poorer classes, according to a statement by Dr. Abraham J. Lehman, of New York University, before the New York County Medical Society. Dr. Lehman stated that the children of the wealthy are more susceptible to diphtheria because they are more susceptible to the disease in general. He also stated that the children of the wealthy are more susceptible to the disease because they are more susceptible to the disease in general.

CHARLEMAGNE, back in the eighth century, instituted in his court an Academy—crude but very earnest—to which he drew learned men from all the world. From Rome he brought professors of grammar and arithmetic, architects and sculptors; and from England the famous Alcuin, who helped gather the ancient songs, immortalizing the legends of the early Franks.

Charlemagne had the idea of both the international and the magazine. In Hearst's International runs the same spirit and purpose today—magnified tremendously as the world has grown and displayed in print and beautiful picture.

Advices Moderate Living to Be 100

The Boston American today prints the third in a series of four interviews on the question "How to Live to Be 100." The interview is with Dr. Melville N. Ashby, for years chairman of the medical board of the W. C. T. U.

The series concludes tomorrow with an interview with Dr. Lily Davis Burleigh.

A woman's health is the key to her happiness. It is the foundation upon which all other things are built. If a woman is healthy, she can do anything she wants to do. If she is not healthy, she cannot.

Dr. Ashby says that the secret of a long and healthy life is to live a moderate life. He says that a woman should not eat too much, should not drink too much, and should not work too hard. He says that a woman should also get plenty of exercise and should keep her mind active.

Dr. Ashby also says that a woman should not be afraid of old age. He says that old age is a natural part of life and should be accepted with grace. He says that a woman should not let old age make her feel inferior. He says that a woman should be proud of her age and should use it to her advantage.

WHO'S HUNT?
Although today it is so hard to find from sight
The victim of some Butcher's diabolical play
The guy to whom this vicious war now leads
Is bitter for a longer time than he
His name is Hamlet, I guess, with little inkling
To those who tell him he is a great man
Yet while they kneel and call him a saint
This lonely, black and gloomy starved man

This blunder may be pardoned just the same.
 The landlord was the first to bite the dust.
 Tunnel and Lewis to love him in his wake,
 But Hunt with skillful putts and drive robust.
 Seemed quite intent to take the well-known wicket,
 Through first and second made he swept with ease,
 Nor did the third disturb his steady beam,
 Yet 'twere the match we'd figured him a cheese.
 Whose chances were the thinnest sort of lean.

We tried to get a line of where he's from
And what he'd done before he hit Hoylake
But of his past we could not grab a crumb
Except that Texas is his native State;
Some think he'll hck the world and cop the mug,
While others wisely argue that he won't,
But anyway he's got each galling bug
"Round asking, "Say, who is this feller, Hunt?"

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

In Mexico running dry of oil? Are securities of Mexican oil companies down? Are thousands upon thousands of investors who have put hundreds of millions of dollars into Mexican oil properties facing ruin?

The one man in all the world best qualified to answer these questions, now exercising his much-coveted right of free travel throughout the country, and all over the world, says "no" and he says it very emphatically.

This man was the very first to locate and develop oil in Mexico on a large scale. He imported to Mexico in 1890 more than twenty years ago, and he has since then, through his own efforts, been able to convince the world that there was oil there in abundance. He has been the victim of his own success, and his own ambition, and later with additional capital for the purpose of building his empire, he has been the victim of his own ambition. He has been the victim of his own ambition, and his own ambition, and his own ambition.

His name is John D. Rockefeller, and he is the man who has made the name of Rockefeller famous in the world. He is the man who has made the name of Rockefeller famous in the world. He is the man who has made the name of Rockefeller famous in the world. He is the man who has made the name of Rockefeller famous in the world. He is the man who has made the name of Rockefeller famous in the world.

There is a great deal of talk about the "oil water scare" in Mexico. There is no oil water scare in Mexico. There is no oil water scare in Mexico. There is no oil water scare in Mexico. There is no oil water scare in Mexico. There is no oil water scare in Mexico.

As to the "oil water scare" in Mexico, there is no oil water scare in Mexico. There is no oil water scare in Mexico. There is no oil water scare in Mexico. There is no oil water scare in Mexico. There is no oil water scare in Mexico.

There is a great deal of talk about the "oil water scare" in Mexico. There is no oil water scare in Mexico. There is no oil water scare in Mexico. There is no oil water scare in Mexico. There is no oil water scare in Mexico.

This appearance of salt water in Mexican wells is nothing new or unexpected. Salt water first appeared fourteen years ago at El Paso, Texas, and it has since then been found in other parts of Mexico.

This purely quiet to clear up what has been a misunderstood and misinterpreted situation.

Boston Dispensary Should Not Be Allowed to Close

One of our leading Boston physicians writes to the editor a letter, the following extract of which we incorporate into this editorial because it states a situation perfectly:

The Boston Dispensary is the oldest medical charity in New England and the second oldest in the United States.

Oliver Wendell Holmes and many of Boston's most eminent physicians and surgeons have been on the staff of the dispensary. We handle approximately 50,000 new patients a year, with a total of nearly 100,000 visits.

The dispensary takes care of the poor people of Greater Boston, and contains thirty beds for children.

Besides the service at the dispensary, we maintain a district service covering all the poorer sections of Boston, enabling patients to call a district physician to their homes when not able to go to the dispensary.

At the present time there is a deficit of approximately $84,000, and unless about $200,000 is raised, the dispensary will have to close.

Ought there to be any doubt concerning the raising of this needed $200,000? The calls for voluntary contributions from individuals have been extraordinary from the beginning of the war and seem to be increasing. The new drives for money face increasingly difficult conditions, but the dispensary ought not to close under any circumstances.

If it should fall to raise the money needed from voluntary subscriptions, there ought to be a way to aid it by government help.

Bald Heads, There Is Hope

Your Hair and Teeth May Return

(Copyright, 1921, Max Conrad)

The "Reverend" J. F. Rutherford, also known as "Judge," preaching to 3,000 on Sunday, told them the "Satanic order" now ruling the world is about to end.

In 1925 "the Lord will reveal the perfect food," and after that people will live forever. Those that are bald and toothless, hair and teeth will come back.

This earth is to last forever and people will live on it forever. Death, unpleasant thing, was not included in the original program. Adam caused it by his disobedience. But Adam and Eve had started their little family before the disobedient apple-eating incident. If there had never been any death, how would the problem of overpopulation have been solved?

Speaking for bald heads who are to get back their hair and teeth—half of them at least have sense enough not to want ever again to see those teeth or that hair. They are grateful to know that they are to be relieved from duty here. The more so as the "Reverend" Rutherford intimates that the perfect food will be "grapefruit and oatmeal." If that is to be the perfect food, why move upward from the monkey? He could get grapefruit and a good imitation of oatmeal.

More U. S. Money for Europe

How Big Is the Take-Off?

(Copyright, 1921, Max Conrad)

Morgan & Company are sending one hundred million more American dollars to France. This country wants to see France prosper, likes to oblige a friendly government, but isn't it possible to do so on some non-usurious basis? The bonds pay seven and a half per cent, a disgraceful rate of interest to take from a friendly nation. They are sold to the public at ninety-five cents on the dollar, which makes them pay more than EIGHT per cent. Brokers that sell them get a take-off below ninety-five, and Morgan & Company get another take-off below that. President Harding is interested in protecting the United States against excessive shipments of money abroad. It might be worth while to find out just how much of a take-off it pays Morgan & Company to send a hundred million out the country.

No one needs to be told that Americans desiring to build a new factory or otherwise give employment to labor stand a poor chance of borrowing money in the United States today at any decent interest rate on any ordinary security.

Another Edison Question

How Can You Know a "One-Way Street" in Boston?

If the two "one-way street" signs nearest to the Boston American office are fair samples of others in Boston the Street Commissioners of this town should take a day off and put the lot of them in order. June and July are on the way. Visitors by the thousand soon will be stopping here a day or two on their way to lake, beach and mountain.

At the corner of Summer and Otis streets is a small "one-way" placed on ONE SIDE OF THE STREET ONLY. If he were eleven feet tall and drove an open car the driver approaching that corner from the South Street MIGHT see the warning. Drivers from the direction of Washington street make the forbidden turn in blisful ignorance.

At Arch street, one block west, is a woebegone-looking stand. This one says "Don't." Some of its letters are missing. It is a bad sign.

Boston WANTS visitors. Public funds have been expended more than once to bring them here.

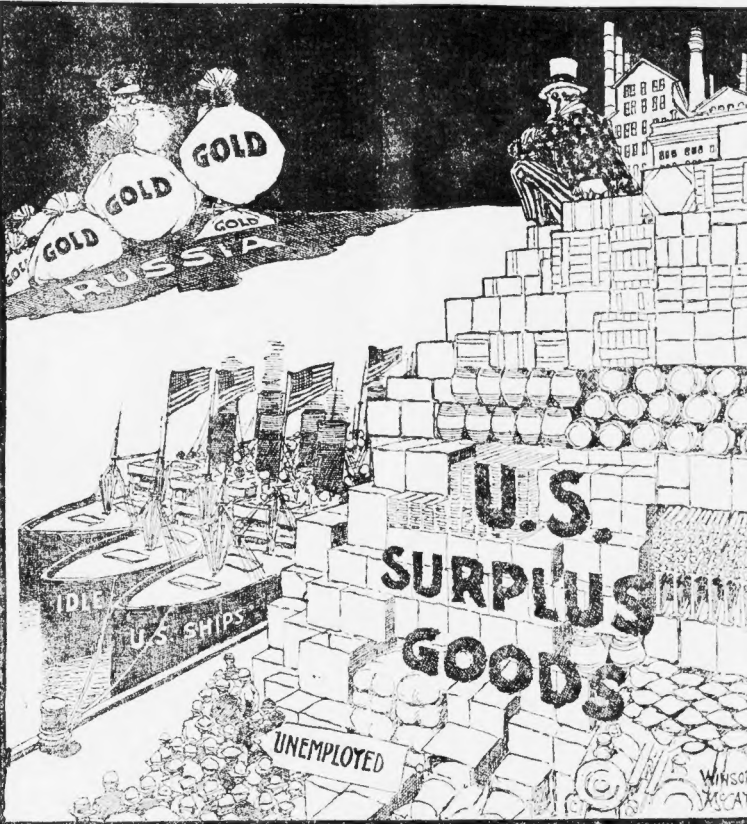

If, having accepted our invitation, our friends are going to be invited to "step around and see the judge," because inadvertently they steer their cars into "one-way" streets, let us at least be thoughtful enough to designate these thoroughfares so that he who drives may read.

The present policy—if it BE a policy—is mean, miserly and shabby.

The helmet of Painted Post would not tolerate the "one-way" street" signs at Arch and Summer, and Summer and Otis streets.

RELATION OF THERMAL UNIT TO COAL

By Garrett P. Servis.

Would you kindly give me the relation of thermal unit to coal?

It is a relation of 14,000 B. T. U. to one ton of coal.

"B. T. U." means British Thermal Unit.

It is the unit of heat energy.

It is defined as the quantity of heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water through one degree Fahrenheit.

Water is used as the standard because it requires a greater quantity of heat than any other substance to produce a given change in its temperature.

The application to coal and other fuels is as follows: If the coal is burned in a boiler, the heat energy of the coal is converted into steam.

The amount of steam produced is proportional to the quantity of heat energy of the coal.

The amount of steam produced is proportional to the quantity of heat energy of the coal.

The amount of steam produced is proportional to the quantity of heat energy of the coal.

The amount of steam produced is proportional to the quantity of heat energy of the coal.
